Publie Jasper releases debut single Faux Sourires

Faux Sourires, the first single from Publie Jasper, the music project of Belgian artist Jasper Publie, is out on 10 December 2026.

The first melodies and lyrics of Faux Sourires were written more than five years ago. It was the first song Jasper wrote partly in French. That is a big part of why it has always stayed close to him, and why he only wanted to release it once it felt completely right musically.

The song is about the routine of everyday life and how you can lose sight of what you actually want. About other people's expectations, the choices you make and daring to go your own way. The chorus sums up that routine in one line: 'Métro, boulot, bistrot et puis au lit' (commute, work, bar, bed).

This year Faux Sourires found its final shape, built on what first drew Jasper to music: his guitar, piano and voice. Dutch and French, the two languages he uses every day, come together in it organically and complement each other.

About Publie Jasper

Publie Jasper is the music project of Brussels-based Belgian artist Jasper Publie. He writes in French and Dutch. He previously fronted the pop-rock band Bandits, studied pop music at the conservatoire and took part in The Voice Belgique. Faux Sourires (10 December 2026) is his first single as Publie Jasper.
